Washington.—Both France and Germany are too tensely set in the carrying out of their present policies in the Ruhr to listen to any outside suggestion. So no government is attempting to persuade either side to consent to peace negotiations.

This is the latest information from the department of state. It nothing is going on in formally in the realm of diplomacy abroad, the American government has not heard of it. This means that no government has the temerity to seek peace.

France and Germany publicly or privately to cease their war of exhaustion and that the two parties of correction and passive resistance must run their course. The military situation, stopping of food supplies, government-inspired strikes, isolation of the civilian population in the Ruhr, and all the other measures which the civilized world used to think brutal in war days are being permitted to pass without protest from any government. Coblenz Handed Over to French by Yank General

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Coblenz.—The Coblenz area of occupation held by American troops since the establishment of the allied occupation zone on the Rhine was turned over to the French, at noon Saturday.

Major General Henry T. Allen, commander in chief of the American forces in Germany, and General Marti of the French army were the two military officers involved in the transfer.

The final ceremony, ending the four years of American occupation, witnessed by more than 1,500 people, the largest crowd ever seated at any indoor event in the history of Janesville, 33 young men and women completed their four-year high school course, Friday night, and were awarded diplomas at commencement exercises in the beautiful auditorium of the new high school.

It was a memorable occasion, chiefly because it was the first use of the new high school, the first class to graduate from there, and because the students had been working hard and blind that 1,116 seats and the 100 extra chairs that were placed in the rear of the immense auditorium. It was a joyous occasion to be long remembered by every person in the audience as well as the 33 on the stage, who shared honors with the new auditorium for attention.

Auditorium Packed Early.
The formal transfer of authority took but a few moments. It was accompanied with brief expressions of regret at the departure of the Americans.

The assumption of control by the French is stated, will be followed immediately by the application of the same disciplinary measures that the French have been imposing upon the Prussian civil authorities elsewhere in the Rhineland. This policy heretofore has not been extended to the Coblenz area.

"MOB SPECIAL" IS CHARGED BY LABOR

Brotherhood Statement Says
Strikers Punished; Aid in Inquiry Pledged.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Cleveland.—Charges that "a mob special," carrying armed men, was run over the Missouri and North Arkansas railroad for the purpose of inflicting punishment on striking employees of the railroad, were made in a statement Saturday by D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Enginemen.

Mr. Robertson has communicated with the governor of Arkansas, asking a thorough investigation of the recent trouble at Harrison and Heber Springs, involving the lynching of a striker by unidentified men and the expulsion of a number of other strikers by a "citizens' committee." He has promised the government his organization would cooperate with the state in bringing to justice all guilty parties, regardless of who they were.

2 Youths Bound Over on Robbery, Liquor Charges

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Madison.—Victor H. Arnold, former Madison broker, will not appear at Superior to answer charges voted in indictments by a federal grand jury until July 1, said Mr. Robertson, William H. Dougherty, attorney for Superior.

Arnold was scheduled to appear at Superior Jan. 22, for arraignment but upon agreement between H. S. Corbett and myself, this appearance was dispensed with upon Arnold's agreement to waive all dilatory plead and present himself for trial at the July term of court at Superior," said Mr. Dougherty in explaining the mix-up. The case will go to trial on its merits.

"After this arrangement was concluded a wire was received from U. S. Attorney Greene at Brooklyn, N. Y., to the effect that Arnold was on his way west to plead. This wire was probably the result of a misunderstanding on Mr. Greene's part, and is the cause of the supposed confusion in the date of Arnold's appearance. Arnold therefore will appear as first arranged at the July term of court for arraignment and trial."

Mr. Dougherty will go to Superior, Sunday night, and the grand jury now in session will conclude its work Tuesday. The session's work has been handled by Mr. Dougherty's assistant, Stanley M. Ryan, Janesville.

Any indictment voted by the federal grand jury at the conclusion of its session will be returnable at the July term of court at Superior, Mr. Dougherty said.

Rust spots, seen here and there on the plaster work, will be taken care of. It is said that it is impossible to prevent them now, and that as soon as the plaster is well dried out, there will be no trouble from the source.

There is a small amount of paint on the plaster work, it cannot be painted.

Good taste is one of the qualities that made the auditorium as attractive as it is. The building through and through follows the same type of design—a Gothic type—and the colors also harmonize well.

For once, there was enough room for the graduates and all others who formerly had to crowd themselves onto the stage whenever exercises were held. In previous years there was great competition in getting the stand holding the diplomas on the stage, and last June, when 98 graduated, it was almost impossible to keep all the graduates and officials on the stage while diplomas were handed.

FINE CITY-RURAL SPIRIT IS SHOWN

Evansville Community Meeting Shows Trend Toward Cooperation.

Sincere efforts to link the rural and urban interests for community development without city limits are evident in all parts of Rock county.

There were 150 men, members of the Evansville Chamber of Commerce and farmers from the Evansville district, attending the "Know Your Neighbor—You Might Like Him" meeting Friday night, a splendid banquet was served in the Evansville Methodist church and the meeting was held at the Hotel. A similar meeting will be held in Orfordville next week and each city civic organization is planning such a conference.

In every community there is a marked tendency for the farmer and urban residents to sit down, break bread together and calmly confer on subjects of mutual interest and concern and go away friends.

Give to Community

With the exception of utterances aimed at Mayor Thomas E. Welsh, Janesville's for his notorious "pumpkin" show, a pleasant time was had by all. The Evansville residents were serious in their discussions as to such a future indicating signs of community development.

Our speakers were frank to declare that they did not believe the mayor represented the true Janesville sentiment, or that of the county. W. E. Green, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided.

"We sold out our campaign man when we knew he would not know when his bushes started Chairman Green.

The lack of confidence between the rural and urban residents was displayed by Rev. Father W. P. McDermott. "This curse of the spirit of 'got'—individual selfishness—is holding back both the city and country. It is about time we learned the gospel of 'giving' instead of 'getting' for the community."

Ready for Cooperation

"The farmers are ready for cooperation, services and policies with the city resident," declared H. A. Knapp, farmer.

"We don't have the old fashioned ways now, we have business men on the farm," declared Rev. O. W. Smith. "It is just adding the business man of the country to the business man of the city in a community development program.

W. E. Evansville are rather proud of our 'pumpkin' show and boast it as a farm exhibit rather than a fair for racing and idle entertainment."

The plans for the Rock county junior clubs were explained by J. A. Craig, Janesville.

"We have reached a stage where farming and marketing to stand," declared Mr. Craig. "The city man must prepare himself to meet organized farmers—not having crazed leadership or insane ideas. Farmers will never fly off on a tangent or distract the government for the reason they own property and it is government first to protect their property rights."

Cities Service Stations

"Town are the service stations for the farmer," declared W. E. Summer, Madison. "Your city is obliged to render a service to the country and in turn the farmer to the city and town." The cities of Madison now must have agricultural clinics, for there are no agricultural clinics. The newspaper is as important as the church, bank or store in the exchange of views and our newspapers must present both sides, farm and city. Both elements must have confidence."

In closing the meeting President Green declared the meeting to be "just a beginning" of inter-community development.

YANK POLITICIANS CONTROL WAR DEBT ISSUE, SAYS BRITON

They have men of their way of thinking in the eastern states," he said, "but that does not cut any ice at all with regard to the other parts of America."

"If you look at the senate, you will find that the majority of the members come from the agricultural and pastoral communities, and they do not realize the existing position with regard to the meaning of the international debt."

Congress Is Difficult

"They are in much the same frame of mind we used to be in regarding reparations, when a large number of people in this country thought Germany would send bags of gold every Saturday night until the money was paid up. A great many people in America think that we have to do is send money over there."

"The debt can be finally paid through congress and the senate and that is the root of difficulty with which we are now faced."

Mr. Baldwin asserted he might say more but was obliged to discuss the question with his cabinet. Asked whether he would return to America, he said:

"I should like to do so because I have been well received there, but I shall not be able to return as I have my own work to do here."

PROGRAMS AT JANESEVILLE THEATERS, WEEK OF JANUARY 27-28.

MYERS
Monday through Thursday—"A Tailor-Made Man," with Charles Ray; Tuesday through Sunday—Vaudeville and "Thirty Days," with Wallace Reid.

BEVERLY
Sunday through Tuesday—"The Sin Flood" with Richard Dix, Helen Chadwick and James Kirkwood. New Buster Keaton comedy "The Electric House," and Harold Lloyd's comedy.

Wednesday and Thursday—"Heros and Husbands," Katherine MacDonald, and comedy.

Friday—Feature picture and vaudeville. Saturday—"Snow-Blind," and "Plunder," with Pearl White. APOLLO.

Manager James Zanias of the Apollo theater is receiving congratulatory messages from all over the country. Just a decade ago the Apollo theater, resplendent in beautiful drapes, then a new building, opened its doors. It was then, and who worked in a tailor shop in New York, he worked up to meeting a millionaire, how he secured a position for his son, who then came in contact with after that form the theme for the picture, Ray's most troubling. The good cast includes Eddie Grandin, Katz Lester and Jacqueline Logan, all familiar names. Clarence is the last picture made by the late Walter Edwards, who died recently. While Clarence was more a bigger production, taken as it was from an immensely popular play, the preceding one, The Tailor-Made Man, was more to the comedy type that made Reginald Denny well-liked. It is said he started on Clarence when he was taken with his later illness, and that the picture was re-made with another star. Denny displayed real ability in "Clarence" and doubtless will keep up his record in "Thirty Days." At any rate it will be an interesting if somewhat sad picture to look at. In it he is the idol of the courteous young women, as he was in real life, and the competition to win him provides comedy and dramatic interest.

While comedy is the predominating feature of "Thirty Days," there are many dramatic occasions. Wanda is the supporting star, giving a number of the familiar Paramount stars are also seen.

AT THE BEVERLY.

Many have been awaiting "The Sin Flood" for a variety of reasons. The commendatory reviews whetted one's appetite for the picture and it now is to be shown at the Beverly for three days, starting Sunday.

"The Sin Flood" is a strong, yet not unpleasant picture. Its strength does not detract from its artfulness.

While "The Sin Flood" is about that, "The Tailor-Made Man" is the situation many things are liable to happen.

People sometimes say things in a picture that are not true, but in this case, although the two main characters were saved from death, it happens that the confessions only made them the more happy when they were saved.

Unusual situations are many. Eleven people are in a water-tight room, totally surrounded and isolated by the great flood, and remain there for three days, starting Sunday.

"The Tailor-Made Man" is a picture that will be easily remembered for their work in "The Old Maid," and "Dangerous Curve Ahead." She makes a beautiful blonde, while a man, who is otherwise not very attractive, is another character.

Other matinées in the cast are James Kirkwood, John Stepping, Ralph Lewis and others.

the underworlds of New York, then to the west of China, and in the end back to old Kentucky, where the two had been brewing, that were of no advantage to the old colonel. His son arrives after escaping from those who had him bound, and just in time to capture all the villainy and win back the respect of his father, who had sent him away when his marriage to the colonel's daughter had been disclosed.

Reginald Denny plays the leading part in this thriller. He will be remembered for his part in "The Leatherneck Girl," "The Thin Man," which were recently as the Count Alexis in "Sherlock Holmes." Lillian Rich plays the leading feminine role and the other players soon are familiar to most fans.

The climax, when the scenes of the derbies are shown, is especially thrilling.

Following the usual policy, a feature picture will be seen on Friday when the vaudeville will start. Sunday acts to continue through Sunday night, with comedies.

Mrs. Ben Smith, for more than a year manager of the Majestic theater, has started on her final week there. The show that takes the curtain.

However, the house will be closed before that time for remodeling and will probably open soon after Feb. 1, with regular policy, manager, and usher at work.

Butterly Kiddon at the Apollo past week proved a revelation to most people. It was interesting to watch them have their lessons each morning, and after they were seen, their modesty and good training was not to be wondered at.

AT THE MYERS.

Charles Ray will have a new part in "A Tailor-Made Man," his first big production in six months. Ray has perhaps disappointed admirers of the last few pictures, but they continue to have faith in him, and in this he will be up to the mark record he made when he produced "The Clogdopper" and a few years earlier.

In "A Tailor-Made Man," he shows that he can play other parts equally well. A play that is well-known, many people know the story of "A Tailor-Made Man," the story of the struggling ambitious young man in the theater world, who is played, and when those parts appear, will always be compared with Ray's masterpieces.

But in "A Tailor-Made Man," he shows that he can play other parts equally well. A play that is well-known, many people know the story of "A Tailor-Made Man," the story of the struggling ambitious young man

AT THE APOLLO.

To older people familiar with the stage, "The Tailor-Made Man," will bring memories of great scenes of excitement and melodrama. To others, the story of Kentucky Derby, which signifies melodrama in its greatest extent, for any picture connected with horse racing in Kentucky, is bound to find a wide audience.

"The Kentucky Derby," is an excellent production. It is full of typical melodrama and romance which starts the characters at the old homes of Kentucky, takes them to the dens of the underworlds of New York, then to the west of China, and in the end back to old Kentucky, where the two had been brewing, that were of no advantage to the old colonel. His son arrives after escaping from those who had him bound, and just in time to capture all the villainy and win back the respect of his father, who had sent him away when his marriage to the colonel's daughter had been disclosed.

Renee, actress and drama student in "Heroes and Husbands" to make a picture rich in entertainment value. The story is the event and interesting. It is the triangle of two women who couldn't find romance with her husband and did attempt to find it with another man. The unusual twist given at the beginning pleases me. I think it is very interesting that the many minds with this theme.

Katherine Macdonald plays the lead in this drama, and plays it with her usual grace and charm. I think her and attractive others in the cast are Charles Cary, Charles Gerard and equally well-known actors and actresses. The picture is shot between scenes of romance and many elaborate society scenes.

Katherine Newlin Burt wrote the story from which "Heroes and Husbands" is taken. It is an interesting tale of the "old woods," somewhat similar to "The Storm," in that the drama is played out in a snow-bound cabin between two men, Russell Simpson, Mary Alden, Culkin Lantell and Pauline Clarke play these for characters.

Fort Atkinson—In what little battle Fort Atkinson high school defeated Jefferson here Friday night in the River Valley league games 8 to 8. The victory puts Fort in third place in the circuit and drops the Jeffs down to fourth.

The locals had the ball most of the time. On the other hand, Jefferson pulled off some star guarding and was right on the ball all the time.

The Fort took the jump ball at 2:30, the Rev. M. H. Heggs of Stoughton officiating. Interment was in Coolsville cemetery.

AN EVENT OF THE GREATEST IMPORTANCE.

Something happened in Janesville Friday night that never had happened before. These things out of the ordinary make up history. Fourteen hundred people attended a high school commencement in comfort, seated in an auditorium perfect in acoustics, beautifully lighted, attractively appointed and representing property of the people of the city.

Thirty-three boys and girls began a second journey in life Friday night, and in all the years they may live hereafter they may be proud to have it said that they were the first to graduate from the Janesville High School and to receive their diplomas in the new and magnificent building provided for the education of the city's children.

It is an achievement once dreamed about, hard to realize.

Talk of oil on troubled waters! The more it is poured on the Turkish waters the more blaze we get.

"POLLY, PUT THE KETTLE ON."

"Polly, put the kettle on and we will all take tea." But the tea was badly made, the toast was burned or the biscuits were soggy, because Polly was a modernist and never thought it necessary to learn the art and science of cooking. She was to have a career, and in a career the necessity for food preparation was never given a thought. Yet in a moment of being human, Polly got married to an ambitious but poor young man and suddenly found herself at the head of a home catering business and the general manager of a household, with no training or equipment. All her arguments that if ever the time came she could learn to cook in a few moments and her asseveration that "anyone could cook" went into the tearful discard with successive failures and family indigestion.

Preparation of food has long since been forgotten as a haphazard guessing game. Manufacturers of dyspepsia tablets and remedies for digestion disorders would cease business were we to have food always properly cooked and served with a little common sense in eating as well. And the public is rapidly appreciating that fact. The Gazette has just closed a four day cooking school and demonstration of food values and their use. It has been popular in the sense that it has been attended by crowds daily, and the quarters were found to be so restricted that it was impossible to do justice to the audience. It has moved the Gazette to believe that this will be welcomed again and each year hereafter there is to be a cooking school conducted in Janesville by the Gazette so that the newlyweds as well as those who have long been engineers of domestic science as demonstrated on the family table, will have opportunity to add to the store of knowledge of the greatest of sciences.

The law does not need any protection with masks.

THE CALEDONIAN BALD.

Robert Burns, exciseman of Dumfries, died and was buried 126 years ago. Robert Burns, the peasant poet of Mossiegill, lives in the hearts of millions. This youth, who at thirty was a bent and bowed man with stooping shoulders and heavy gait—old and worn and content to die at 38, had run the gamut of all human emotions and played a thousand songs which have been left as a legacy for cheer and hope to all humankind.

Born in poverty—bitter and clinging poverty—in a time when Scotland was in the clutches of landlords, he found time between the exactions of toll to write with matchless gift of speech and a soul burning with fire, high courage, a daring mind and a proud heart, those songs and poems which have preserved his name for 164 years, not only in Scotland but in all the world. Burns sang to the people in a language they understood. He preserved in rhythm the vernacular of his time. Old Scotland passes, but men and women change not. He lived in a day of intemperate joys and licentious wit but rose above these environments and grew peacock flowers on the barren and recalcitrant hillsides of Ayrshire.

In his later years he summed up all of his life in a few words:

To make a happy fireside for weans and wife. That's the true pathos and sublime, of human life!

It was a dour world in Burns' day; dark and drear. Gates of opportunity were closed to his class. But he found a way to scale the wall and the proud "Berkie ca'd a laird" whose "rank was but the guinea stamp" has long since passed into

American Crude Rubber Industry

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—The American rubber industry has lastly determined to break away from British control and produce its own raw material. Henry Ford, who probably is the world's largest single consumer of rubber tires, and Harvey S. Westcott, one of the largest tire manufacturers, are joining forces to exploit the resources of the Philippine Islands and South America.

The United States consumes more rubber than the rest of the world put together. The phenomenal growth of the automobile industry in this country has increased rubber consumption for tires to tremendous proportions. Rubber is a product of the tropics. The best rubber, in fact nearly all of it, comes from British controlled possessions in the Orient. The Federated Malay states, Sumatra and Ceylon are the principal producers.

Last November the British placed a graduated tax on rubber exports from these colonies. The result is that the cost of rubber in the United States is doubled. It is estimated that the British tax has added $100,000,000 to the cost of rubber to American consumers.

The American rubber industry filed a protest with Great Britain against the tax but to no avail. Great Britain had protested against the increased American tariff and no attention was paid to that protest. It was scarcely to be expected that Great Britain would heed our protest against the rubber tax.

Realizing this Mr. Ford and Mr. Firestone finally decided that the only manner of emancipating the American rubber consumer from the exigencies of British politics was to control our own sources of supply. Mr. Ford has been developing a policy of industrial self-reliance for some years. He has purchased iron ore mines, has erected a steel mill, has acquired coal mines and a railroad. The next inevitable step was that he should interest himself in the control of raw material for his rubber tires.

The Philippine Islands and the Amazon River Basin in South America have fit the natural advantages for producing as good rubber as the Dutch East Indies or Ceylon. They have never been intensively developed because production costs were too high to enable Philippine and South American rubber successfully to compete with the Eastern product. The imposition of the British tax removes this difficulty. The tax automatically adds 100 percent to the foreign cost of the rubber from British sources.

THE BIGGEST TAXES IN THE WORLD.

Once more an office boy has risen to the president's chair of one of the world's largest and most important corporations. James Simpson, after twenty years of service with Marshall Field & Co., recently made president that mammoth company to succeed John G. Shedd, who started at the bottom.

Simpson is only forty-nine years old. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and brought to this country when very young by his parents.

He went to the public schools and business college in Chicago. He entered the employ of the Field company as an office boy when he was seventeen. A few years later he was made confidential secretary to Marshall Field and he remained in that office until the great merchant died in 1906.

He became vice president and assistant to the president the following year he became first vice president.

In 1913 Simpson went to France to assist in extending the organization of the American Red Cross. He was also a member of the capital issues committee during the war. He is director in several philanthropic and welfare organizations in Chicago.

Simpson has a dynamic personality and is described by his friends "as smart as a steel trap."

President of Straw Hat Manufacturers' association, who stands high in the world of business.

Arrival of the period for filing income tax returns—January 1 to March 15, 1923—presents a question to American citizens and residents the question "Am I required to file a return?" and "How shall I be assured of making a correct return?"

To every person who last year filed a return will be sent a form for making a return of income for the year 1922—Form 1040A for reporting net income of $4,000, and less, and Form 1040 for reporting net income in excess of $4,000.

Careful study of the instructions on these forms will solve many difficulties which, at first glance, may seem perplexing.

As a further aid, the Bureau of Internal Revenue has prepared a series of newspaper statements based on the latest rulings and decisions governing the administration of the revenue laws.

Answers to the questions, which from the bureau's correspondence during the last year appear perplexing, will be presented daily. Taxpayers are advised to preserve these articles as they appear in order that when they begin preparation of their returns they may have before them a comprehensive summary of the requirements of the revenue act.

The tax imposed is a net income, which is gross income less certain specified deductions for business expenses, losses, bad debts, etc., to be fully explained later. Single persons may subtract from net income before calculating the normal tax, an exemption of $1,000.

The exemptions for married persons and heads of families are $2,500 on incomes of $5,000 or less and $2,000 on incomes in excess of $5,000.

Taxpayers are allowed, also, an additional credit of $400 for each person dependent upon them for whom support is claimed. Support is under 16 years of age, incapable of self support, because totally or physically disabled.

Requirement to file an income tax return rests upon every single person whose net income for 1922 was $1,000 or more or whose gross income was $5,000 or more and upon every married person whose net income was $2,000 or more or whose gross income was $6,000 or more, regardless of whether or not the income is taxable.

For example a man and wife with two children 1 and 4 years old had a net income for 1922 of $1,500. Their total exemptions and credits amount to $3,300. A single man whose income was $1,800 supports his home an aged mother. His exemption is $2,600 as the head of a family plus a $400 credit for a dependent. In both cases returns must be filed, though the incomes are not taxable.

Such a change would be of the utmost importance. When an industry centers about a great city, a vast network of allied activities is built up about that center. The financing, the insurance, the shipping, the conditioning, and the brokerage all adhere to the city which is the rubber market. In consequence, if New York displaces London as the world's rubber center, this collateral business will adhere to New York rather than to the British capital.

So extensive a program will require time in development but American methods of mass production will be applied and the traditional American hustle will be employed. With these forces turned loose, an American controlled crude rubber industry, free of any British or other foreign restriction, may be regarded as in sight.

JUST FOLKS

I WOULD NOT Grieve Too Much.

I would not grieve too much. The promise tells that rest is his who sleeps so sweetly there; Beyond the dull, slow tolling of the bells Walsh marks his passing, his life free from care.

Real Fun for Every One

'Tree Toss' Is Game for Whole Family

Play experts from all over North America send in their newest ideas to The Fun Times. Regular readers of The Fun Times will learn about all sorts of games and stunts just as soon as they are invented.

Everyone likes a tossing game, especially if it doesn't take a whole lot of practice to win. Mr. Theodore J. Smigalski, Superintendent of Recreation for the West Chicago Park Commissioners, has worked out a throwing game called "Tree Toss," which the whole family can play. He has told The Fun Maker just how it goes.

Make Your Own "Tree"

The game gets its name from a wooden upright, which looks like a tree. To make this tree, take a smooth, round piece of wood 6 1/4 inches in diameter, and set it in a circular wooden base 18 inches in diameter and 1 1/2 inches thick. This forms the trunk. The branches are made by setting in, and about the upright piece, at intervals of 8 inches, starting from the top, and at angles of 45 degrees, round wooden pegs about 7 inches long and 1/2 inch in diameter. Also set one of these pegs straight up in the top of the upright.

The pegs facing the tosser should be marked 5 points; those a little to the side, 10 points; those pointing directly sideways, 15 points; the top peg, 20 points, and those on the opposite side of the upright and away from the player, 25 points.

The rings, which are 8 inches in diameter, and set in a circle.

Manila rope, with the ends either spliced or tied.

Toss Rings Over Pegs

The object of the game is to toss the rings over the pegs from a 4-foot line drawn 15 feet from the tree. The one who scores 50 points the quickest is the winner. The rings should be tossed underhand, the same as an indoor baseball. Any number of people can play the game, and may form "sides" or teams.

You can make changes in scoring and distance, if you want to, but however you play it, you'll find it more exciting than any "ring the doll" game at a county fair.

(The Fun Maker has a great outdoor game for next week. It's a surprise. Watch for it.)

Gazette Good Times Club
FOR ALL SCHOOL BOYS AND GIRLS

Letters received from teachers and others the past week indicate that interest in the music memory contest and the general record for growing in all parts of the country, tools that desire to take advantage of the record offer will do well to begin their work at once before the territory in which they are located is covered by some one else. Records are given for new and renewal mail subscriptions only but there are no other territorial limitations. It is suggested that each school will cover their own

Mrs. Hyde's district first, and then desire to enlist the interest of friends in other districts, will be encouraged to do so, in cases where the schools located in their districts have not taken up the work. A record of entries will be sent to the third prize of the music memory contest bulletin sent to all offices last week, should be filled and mailed to the Gazette circulation department at once. If your school wishes to take advantage of this offer, the Good Times club editor will operate with rural schools that desire to give an entertainment to raise money with which to purchase a graph. If desired a full evergreen program of music and other features can be provided. Full information about this plan will be sent

RURAL SCHOOL EVENTS.

The Good Times club editor will present a program of motion pictures and music memory contest selections the Cooksville school, town of Orfordville, Wednesday evening, January 27.

Entertainments were given at the week at Avalon, Orfordville, and SPELLING LIST ISSUED.

County Superintendent Anisfeld received a supply of pamphlets containing the rules and regulations for the state fair contests in arithmetic, spelling and writing, and a 1,700 word to be used in the spelling contest. Copies of these pamphlets are being mailed to teachers. Two contests will be held in each county, usual near the end of the school year and the county contest will take place on the day of a rural school commencement. The township and county music contest will be an extra feature planned in connection with the contests in Rock County this year.

GAZETTE GOOD TIMES CLUB MEANS TO RURAL SCHOOLS

Teachers and pupils of rural schools are coming more and more to the Good Times club for assistance with their recreation and entertainment activities. Following are some of the requests received the week:

for Economical Transportation

Chevrolet Motor Company
ANNOUNCES

An important development in economical transportation, consisting of a motor embodying new application of established principles governing the efficient control of motor temperatures under all weather conditions.

Instead of the usual regulation of motor temperatures by water jacket and cellular radiator, heat radiation is controlled through copper fins permanently united to each cylinder by a patented metallurgical process.

Chevrolet cars, equipped with these new copper-cooled motors are being marketed in limited quantities.

Understanding fully the requirements of the motoring public, and that individual opinions govern the use of automobiles of various types of construction, the Chevrolet Motor Company is offering this development to the public along with its present successful line of New Superior Models. The same high standards of efficiency and quality will be maintained in the copper-cooled line.

Chassis with copper-cooled motor is on exhibition at the Automobile Show at the Coliseum, Chicago

Then came one of the most heart-breaking experiences to visit itself. Coming from behind, after the loss of two of its players via the personal route, the Blues displayed wonderful playing in the last quarter, earning all kinds of admiration from the big crowd of fans. With great playing, Janesville tied the score at 18 all with two minutes to go.

It was a fierce game. The players worked hard and the game was well fought. Mock went out in the first quarter with four personals. Renaud followed him in the beginning of the second half. In all, the Blues had 15 personal fouls and 11 technical. On the other hand, each man-on-the-Racine team was able to keep within a hair's breadth of going out, each having three personals, a total of 15, for the team. Both teams made the same number of field goals.

Played Smashing Game

Janesville played a whirling game. The outfit was working smoothly with nice team organization. Though Dickinson and Dawson did the counting, the other members of the squad come in for a lot of credit. Longhead starred for Racine. Last year Janesville beat Racine by three points.

Cats to Meet Karst Again, at Brooklyn

Unable to do much with Brothman against the Janesville Black Cats at the rink here Thursday night, Eddie Karst is reported to be engaged to play with the Brooklyn Tigers against the Felines Saturday night. The contest is to be staged at Brooklyn.

Brooklyn is also said to have several other outsiders hooked up to give them a jolt. The Green County team is anxious to make up for the 34 to 34 defeat earlier in the season at the hands of the Cats.

The usual bunch will play with the Pussies. "Butch" Raubacher will probably continue at forward, with Kober and Kakuske at guard. The others will be Lanphere, Bick, Babcock, Oakley, Manogue.

Evanston Looking Ahead to Playing for Wisconsin Title

(By Gazette Correspondent)

Evanston—The undefeated Evansville high school basketball team will play their first game of the season Saturday night against the fast quintet from Harvard, Ill. The Illinois team is making a three day trip into southern Wisconsin. It played at Brothman Friday night. The local lineup will be the same that started against University high, providing all team members get through the semester examinations. With the return of Janesville to the lineup, Evansville is now composed of the five players that won the Milton college tourney last year and placed second at Whitewater.

According to latest newspaper reports, the Evansville girls will go to the Whitewater tournament with Janesville, Madison, Oconomowoc and others picked by the W. M. A. According to comparative scores, Evansville has the best record so far and should get to the state meet at Madison.

BRINGING UP FATHER

BADGER COACH SAYS ALIAS HITS AT HEART OF SPORTS

Use of assumed names by amateur athletes to cover up their participation under questionable circumstances; use of assumed names at any time, is striking at the essence of good sportsmanship, which is honesty and fairness. So says Thomas E. Jones, director of athletics at the University of Wisconsin, commenting upon the "Busy Man's Sport Page" editorial in the Gazette last Monday. He writes the following letter:

"I have read with interest your position as to the use of assumed names by athletes. You should get support in this matter from all true sportsmen. No self-respecting alumnus, citizen or newspaper can support this practice because in my mind the very essence of good sportsmanship is honesty and fairness.

THE BUSINESS OF FARMING—DAIRY—FARM BUREAU—LIVE STOCK

COUNTY DAIRYMEN FORM NEW ASS'N

New Organization, Born Here, Succeeds County Milk Producers.

Garnestly expressing a desire to help each other and work together under some organization, 20 milk producers, meeting in the court house at Avalon, established the Rock County Dairymen's association, and chose Richard K. Overton, Shadore, as the president. Marcus H. Kellogg, Janesville, was elected vice-president; J. C. Black, Beloit, secretary; and A. C. Van Calder treasurer. The new organization, like the Stock County farm who is a milk producer can become a member regardless through what organization his milk is marketed. The new name was chosen instead of "Rock County Milk Producers' association" which it succeeds, as a matter of policy.

President Overton appointed W. G. Patterson, Evansville; M. H. Kellogg, Janesville; Bert Lutinen, Beloit, and L. O. Natale, Clinton, a committee to draw up a constitution and by-laws. The first meeting, at which the committee will report, will be held at Avalon, Feb. 16. Avalon was chosen because of the tense situation there and the evident desire of the dairymen's association to help as much as possible in the marketing of their product.

"Stick Together"—Overton. A large majority of those present at the meeting were those working under a lease contract and, as one member said, the county organization needed to be the back of the marketing company.

"Never more than in the past six months have I sensed a need for a county milk producers' organization in Rock county," said President Overton. "We think we have had some hard fights in the past but, so far, nothing like the ones this month. We have a harder fight in maintaining milk prices. If we don't hang together now, gentleman and market collectively, we might as well go out of business, because if collective marketing doesn't go over now, it won't be resurrected in our day."

Spoken of the fight now being made against the farmers' organization by the big Chicago dealers and said that they hate to have the milk producers tell them what they will have to pay for the incoming product.

Before officers were elected, Bert Skinner, Beloit, president of the Rock County Milk Producers' Association, gave the reason he had stayed in the organization was to help the other fellows who had not received back checks.

Mr. Overton said he plans to get some of the best speakers the Chicago milk district has to offer to talk to the Rock county organization at their monthly meetings.

BEEKEEPERS MEET HERE ON FEB. 3

Rock county beekeepers will gather in Janesville, Feb. 3 to discuss ways and means of increasing honey production.

This is the announcement of the Rock County Beekeepers' Association, of which Walter A. Ross, Janesville, is president, and S. J. Riesletter, Janesville, secretary.

Two meetings will be held during the day. The morning session opens at 10 and the afternoon program commences at 1:30.

L. P. Whitehead, extension specialist in bee culture at the University of Wisconsin, has been secured to lead the discussion on important problems of the industry.

D. Adams, marketing specialist of the state departments of agriculture and markets, is also on the program. He will talk on grades and marketing methods for Wisconsin honey, and will discuss the subject of bee diseases.

"Wisconsin now ranks fifth among all states in honey production," says Mr. Whitehead. "The past year's crop of 15 million pounds is a slight increase over any previous year and shows the increasing importance of the industry."

"Nevertheless, Badger beekeepers are not producing nearly enough honey as they could. Many beekeepers could operate double the number of colonies with but little added labor."

Unusual interest is being shown by Rock county residents, and those interested in beekeeping, and a big attendance is looked for by those in charge.

BRIGGS PRESIDENT OF SOY BEAN ASSOC.

George M. Briggs, field crops man of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, has just been elected president of the National Soybean Growers' association.

Wisconsin is one of the 12 leading states in soybean production represented in the membership of the association.

Following the election of Briggs as chief executive, it is quite probable that a demonstration will be held on the Wisconsin Experiment Station Farm here next summer.

For many years Briggs has been an ardent soybean enthusiast. He has helped to boost greatly the soybean acreage of the state. He sees the soybean as a promising crop which can be profitably raised on many Wisconsin acres.

"Soybeans," he says, "not only enrich the land, but are valuable as food for livestock and soybean oil is rapidly gaining for itself a distinct place on the markets of the world."

OWLS EAT MICE AND CHICKEN HEADS

A wild owl that has been tamed should be fed a great variety of food such as mice and rats, small pieces of meat, mainly beef or horse meat and chicken heads. So says Frederic J. Haskin, director of the Gazette Inc., Washington, D. C.

"Owls should have fresh water every day and a fine sand on the floor of the cage," he continues. "A couple of perches or rustic limbs big enough for the claws to go halfway around should be put up for them to hop on.

Mr. Haskin sent out eight free catalogues during the week, and one pamphlet on owls.

WATCHING FARMING PROGRAM IN ROCK CO.

They are all talking Rock county, Reid Murray, secretary of the Wisconsin Livestock association. "In most other counties they wonder how Rock county does so much so quickly."

Secretary Murray was down to the Park-Craft Duroc sale and declared that he knew of no other county that was showing the co-operative spirit to advance as in Rock. "You have a happy combination of leadership, good publicity and community spirit," he said. "Around the state they are looking for great things from your county. You have made them an example to take notice by your卓著的 establishment on which to build many good direct results. Go to it, for the state is watching for that 'Rock County First'."

STAGE BIG BACON SHOW

Madison—A pork show is to be staged here Jan. 29 to Feb. 3.

Home-preserved meats from Wisconsin farms will be featured. Officials of the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' Association are planning to have on display an array of pork cured on bacon farms as has never been seen before assembled.

On the second day of the show a demonstration will be made showing proper bacon curing and curing methods. A carcass display of pork will be one of the features of the exhibit local packers cooperating to make the presentation of interest to every Wisconsin farmer.

The committee in charge of the event consists of Burrell Dobson, Grant county; Reid Murray, Winnebago county; L. H. McKay, Dane county and E. M. Parker, Rock county.

THREE LEGISLATIVE WEEKS SANS ACTION ON SINGLE MEASURE

versity of Wisconsin professors during the war attacking Senator Huber, demanded action on the proposal, while men within his group are known to be advising caution in pushing the matter. They would eliminate the bonfire, or in some cases allow the record to stand as at present. Governor Blaine who first endorsed the resolution has recently expressed a similar view. It and the belief that this proposal will create interesting political history.

Senator Huber is proposing another measure of far-reaching importance in his unemployment insurance bill, introduced this week. The proposition strongly backed and is certain to be one of the most important bills of the session. His third measure of outstanding importance is the initiative and referendum, requiring a constitutional amendment. The administration is backing the bill and it is expected to be adopted.

Retail Price Is Largest Factor in Business Recovery

(National Bank of Commerce Report)

At least a quarter of France's trade remains unpaid because France has a poor claim on Germany's losses, and while America has received $300 million dollars, a recognition of the equity of the American bill. France is at the moment enforcing her idea of priority and taking what she can get from Germany.

Effect on Trade

Meanwhile the effect on American trade is causing much concern. And Senator Borah and members of the farm bloc are growing restive again at the administration's hesitancy to call an economic conference. Mr. Borah is very much in earnest in his belief that the American people should protest against the invasion of the Ruhr and should formally call an economic conference where the French would be before the bar of world opinion to present their case. Mr. Borah is one of those who believes the French have violated their own treaties and that an impartial examination of the facts would prove that.

Even if the public should be willing to pay higher prices there is danger that as a result widespread demands for higher wages will arise on the plea of necessity because of the risks involved in living. A rapid rise in prices would likely bring to an end the present period of comparative prosperity. It is to be hoped that this will not occur, but under the circumstances a conservative policy is desirable. Sufficient confidence to take advantage of expanding business is necessary if much-needed products are to be made available. France especially is any more disposed to accept an invitation to a world economic conference. This would be equivalent to consent that the Ruhr problem and other phases of the reparation controversy shall be submitted for a new discussion and a new set of rules and regulations. France insists that the present rules are adequate. If only the time is borrowed, she is just now engaged in proving to Germany that they can be enforced.

Storm Brewing

The storm in the senate is brewing. The administration is pushing American interests in a world crisis involving moral issues as well as American economic interests. The administration is not anxious to precipitate a controversy with the numerous factions in the senate, and in the absence of any specific objective that would appear to be of any ultimate good, nothing at all is being done. It is a policy of wait and see. The message gives Senator Borah his chance, and there are others in the senate who feel that the foreign policy of the administration is not positive enough to inspire respect.

Secretary Hughes is at the moment fending with the senate and he has the advantage of documents as well as an intimate knowledge of just what the diplomatic situation is in Europe. His return to Senator Lodge telling exactly what Roland Boyden said to him on confidential information, clears up many doubts and shows that Mr. Boyden was not meddling but simply trying to keep the sharp distinction between official representative and unofficial observer, and that he has not yet committed the American government to any opinions on the merits of the reparations controversy.

Mr. Hughes

Mr. Hughes would like to pending resolution worded so that the president of the United States would have the discretionary power at any time to send an American representative to attend officially or refrain from attending the meetings of the reparation commission. Whether the "irreconcilables" would permit this is another question. The administration doesn't feel that the need of an official representative on the commission is at this time greater so it is not pressing for any kind of authority.

Mr. Hughes still believes that the way out of the whole thing is not by any new actions of the reparations commission but by the acceptance of his original suggestion that a commission of bankers and experts from each of the big powers get together to discuss and recommend a solution.

The storm in the senate is brewing. The administration is pushing American interests in a world crisis involving moral issues as well as American economic interests. The administration is not anxious to precipitate a controversy with the numerous factions in the senate, and in the absence of any specific objective that would appear to be of any ultimate good, nothing at all is being done. It is a policy of wait and see. The message gives Senator Borah his chance, and there are others in the senate who feel that the foreign policy of the administration is not positive enough to inspire respect.

When All Herrin Waited for Miners' Trial to End

The first trials at Herrin are over, the five men indicted have been released in February will commence the second round in an effort to get a jury and bring to the bar of justice the men alleged to have been concerned in the cold-blooded massacre. The Gazette correspondent has told the scenes at the court house in the first trials of the massacre itself and has taken more of the trial cases are retold in detail.

"Some array of lawyers for the defense," the defense answers through its pleasant, urbane, smart and exceedingly prosperous-looking Mr. Clark, "there's plenty of money and too much time."

The defendants file in led by George Galligan, newly elected sheriff since the miners in recognition of Thaxter's valiant service, regular between June 26 and 28, rode into the city treasurer's office at a miners' majority. Galligan is a native of Kansas—"Scranton, sir"—and wants the whole world to know it. He is young, dark-haired, pleasant looking. One wonders if he would do a Thaxter-like situation like Thaxter did in fact.

Ots Clark, the first miner arrested, charged with killing McDonald and of making the speech of Brewster Crossing that started the miners to come into the court and the first day he had to sit. He is the man whom The Star's representative, taunted 30 minutes without knowing who the other was.

Clark—in his "Sunday-go-to-meeting" clothes which he wears at the trial—is so well dressed and good looking that he is the last person who would imagine the defendant to be a hobo. Here is a pen and ink sketch of him:

Middle height; middle weight; dark hair; small black moustache; regular features except for a strongly aquiline nose; several gold teeth; dark blue, well pressed suit; large gold watch chain; good looking tan shoes; slightly depressed and of gloomy bearing.

Here are descriptions of the others:

Peter Hiller—Young, stout, fat-faced; medium height. Stocky build. Looks like a garage mechanic, oil and sundry outfit. Listed as a small sitting back, usually with knee held behind his hands. Doesn't seem particularly worried.

Lew Mann—Big, dark-haired; not fat, but muscular; Italian type; stern face; dark complexion. Also has knees in hands at altitude. Rarely smiles and seems to listen to every word of the testimony.

Joe Carnach—Small; slender; hair black and sparse around temples; brushed straight back. Pleasant-looking and mild-maturing. Newspaper men and court attaches call him "a good scoundrel."

Bert Clark—Small; fat face; partly bald. Looks older than any of the defendants except Clark. Culls points of testimony to other men's attention often and occasionally smiles.

What Accusing Witness Testifies

Witness after witness, from the state, points out that the leader of the mob was the man who made the speech that turned the mob from a reasonably orderly one to one that demanded blood and killed to get it.

And so the testimony rolls on and on, and the state rests its case and the defense opens its side. Angus Kerr claims the massacre was the product of peaceful citizens against the importation of armed gunmen into their midst. He indicates that the defense's excuse for the killings will be justifiable homicide, and states that absolute alibi will be proven for the five men on trial.

Hill, Carnach and Grace look up with a good deal of satisfaction when their turns to talk. Mann's hard, glittering look gets a shade softer, Ots Clark sits up. Kerr is a man who speaks after the miners' own hearts. Bert Grace whispers a joke that gets an amused giggle from Carnach and a smile from Hiller.

The judge, the living incarnation of perpetual motion, wanders around the courtroom. He examines minutely the design of the pottery vase that he uses as a gavel, then pours himself a drink of water from a milk can which, besides the vase and two law books, is the only thing on his desk.

He gives an hourly inspection to President Harding's picture, which is tacked on the wall over his head, on his own bench, sits on the clerk's bench, sits on the court reporter's bench, sits on the newspaper reporter's bench, sits on the defense attorney's bench, sits on the state's attorney's bench, sits on the window ledge and deals out decisions like a bored stud poker player, dealing a "last round" at 3 o'clock in the morning.

He puts his hand in his pocket, walks to the window and looks out at the minute of events on Marion's public square. The defense are seven, nameless, unmarked graves, set apart from the rest. No one ever visits them.

"We object," cracks out Ots Glenn.

ARTICLE NO. 17.

The Informative Double. Probably no change in the game of Auction since its inception has earned the widespread results of increased greater interest than the informative double. In the early days of Bridge and in the first days of Auction, the deal was of great importance. A dealer would bid No Trump and the other players with fairly strong hands but no justifiable bid, had to pass. Such results were most irritating, so Doctor C. L. Patton, President of the Knickerbocker Whist Club, New York City, decided that a conventional double of a one No Trump bid would convey information that the dealer also had a No Trump and would request partner to bid his longest and strongest suit. This suggestion at once proved popular and was adopted as the proper defense to the No Trump bid.

Some years later, Mr. W. C. Whitehead, in New York, and Mr. Bryant McCampbell, in St. Louis, independent of one another, conceived the idea of doubling an original suit bid to inform partner that dealer had a No Trump hand but no stopper in the suit bid and to ask partner to bid a No Trump if he had the suit stopped, or, if not to bid his longest and strongest suit. This convention was also very popular and was at once adopted as part of the game.

Both the No Trump and the suit double have been carefully studied and their possibilities have been carefully analyzed. As a result, these doubles are now one of the most important factors of the game. There is not much doubt that the doubles have greatly increased public interest in the game and that the present widespread popularity is due to them. They make the game and make it much more interesting.

An informative double is one that informs partner that dealer has certain type of hand and requests the partner to bid his longest and strongest suit.

The double may be hands of course where the partner of the dealer should pass, but, if he does so doing he feels certain of defeating the contract. For example, suppose dealer bids one Spade and second hand diamonds. His partner with the following hand:

Hearts—J, 4, 3
Clubs—10, 8, 7
Diamonds—A, 2
Spades—5, 7, 6

must bid one Spade. There is no choice and the convention is based on the certainty that partner will bid his long suit, however weak.

Hearts—A, 4, 2

Diamonds—K, 4, 2

Timing Chain Adjustment

Handy Means For Doing This Are Found On All Recent Engines

THE DIVERSITY IN CHAIN LAYOUTS makes general instructions inapplicable to all individual cases and in every instance the instruction book should be consulted and followed as to care and adjustment; but the following statements may prove of value: In most front drives the same chain passes over the driving sprocket on the crankshaft, the large sprocket on the cam-shaft and a third one on the shaft which drives the water-pump or generator or both—the so-called auxiliary shaft. To tighten the chain one sprocket must be moved slightly away from the other two and, as the crankshaft and cam-shaft sprockets are fixed in position, means are usually provided for moving the auxiliary shaft sprocket. If the generator only is driven by the auxiliary shaft, the whole shaft with the sprocket, is usually arranged to be tipped away down or towards the engine itself, it being only necessary to loosen the bolts which hold the generator and generator shaft mounting to the crank-case, re-position the driven parts and set up the holding bolts. When the pump is on the auxiliary shaft it is more usual to mount the auxiliary shaft sprocket on an eccentric, which when turned in one direction moves this sprocket away from the others and vice versa. By loosening a locking device, this eccentric mounting is rendered free to be turned and very often an accessible adjusting screw is provided by which the turning can be delicately accomplished. Moving the sprocket without moving its shaft calls for the provision of some sort of universal of flexible coupling between these two connected parts. Automatic take up of chain looseness is sometimes effected by making the chain pass over an idle sprocket on an eccentric mounting, such as just described, the turning of the eccentric being performed by a constantly acting spring. Chain slackness is always indicated if the generator or pump driving coupling can be turned by hand and a slight amount of free rotation should always be present. The usual rule for adjustment is to tighten until a slight humming is given out and then loosen until this sound just ceases.

COLD CYLINDERS AND HOT WATER

damaged by cold water are by no means rare.

FROZEN JOINTS IN BRAKE LINKAGE

S. D. writes: After parking my car on a blustery evening, the weather turned cold, and when I was ready to drive away, I found it would not move, as the joints in the emergency brake rods had frozen up and the brakes would not release. It took a lot of hammering to loosen up the parts. How can this be prevented in future?

L. McA. writes: During cold weather, I draw off the water completely and when I wish to use the car, all the systems with hot water. Is there any danger of cracking the cylinder castings by so doing?

Answer: There may be a little, but we do not think it is serious. Certainly there is not so much as is involved in filling the cooling system of an overheated engine with cold water, for the possible temperature difference is greater in this latter case. Even very hot water, if the rate it would normally be supplied, would become considerably cooled before reaching the cylinders by passing through the cold radiator. Nevertheless, it would not be good judgment to go to extremes and fill up the system rapidly with boiling water. We cannot recall cases of cold cylinders being cracked by the use of hot water, but cases of hot cylinders being liable.

They Like It—and Ask for More

Our new customers are always quick to appreciate the extra quality and consequent better results produced by PURE CHAMPION GASOLINE.

Ex. A fine quality gasoline can only be obtained by refining. All crude substances of every nature, must be removed during the process of refining, before the SUPERGAS standard of quality can possibly be reached.

This necessitates greater care and discrimination than is ordinarily used, but judging from our customers' increasing demands, we are well satisfied that they now consider a decided preference for SUPERGAS QUALITY that is really dependable and uniform.
